Carter has had a few firsts this year.

His first day of preschool. (We have a preschool co-op/ playgroup.) He was so excited to go and the first few weeks I had to drag him to the car screaming! He picked out a cool backpack with wheels, he loves it. I must admit that I am loving preschool just as much if not more!

Last week Carter also had his first day of soccer. They did stretching, ran laps, and scored goals! Way exciting! Carter had a hard time listening for the full 50 minutes and started to wander /lay down/ visit the drinking fountain. It was fun to watch and he loved it. Paige had to get in her share of the action as well.

What fun it is to have such great kids and get to experience so many firsts!
